| 4:05  | SRO Update: Officer Gomez
- One Meridian high school has over 40 violations so far this year. Acid tablets are being crushed and put in Gatorade at school. They are $10 a tab and easy to conceal in phone cases. CBD oil, as the kids refer to it (which is actually Honey Butane Oil), is becoming more common within high schools as well. Kids are vaping these oils, which have high levels of THC in them. Anyone under the age of 21 in possession or under the influence of alcohol has changed from a misdemeanor to an infraction. This infraction is a $487.50 ticket, due within three weeks vs a misdemeanor which typically takes 6+ months. With this infraction, there are instant ramifications for those in possession of or under the influence of alcohol before the age of 21 versus the current misdemeanor charges given for those smoking or in possession of marijuana. West Ada School District Drug Policy for any drug charge, requires a weeklong in school suspension and multiple drug classes (per administration recommendations).
- Officer Gomez's next presentation on Internet safety is December 6th at Sawtooth Middle School @6:30pm. |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
